"I am the Custodial Services Coordinator of Provo City School District. We service over 2.5 million square feet of building space every day in a K-12 public school system. With that much space to maintain, I am always looking for high quality tools and processes that will increase our custodial team's productivity.

My initial reaction to the Unger Excella floor tool was that it felt good in my hands. I liked that the ergonomic handle is adjustable for users of all heights and the S-curve pole felt natural with my hand placements. Within minutes of use I could tell that the swiveling motion felt much more easy and natural to the user than the side-to-side mopping motion that occurs with a traditional mop handle. This natural motion allows the user to mop twice as much hard floor surface with much less effort. This equates to higher productivity and happier custodial workers! I am also impressed with the ease and portability that the quick-change solution bottles provide. This is perfect for those quick pick-ups where you need to mop up a spill quickly but it is not necessary or practical to fill an entire mop bucket. I am also very excited about the ability to use floor finish in the solution bottles for refinishing VCT and other hard floor surfaces. Having the ability to apply floor finish exactly where you need it in a controlled manner prevents splashing and waste of floor solution and floor finish. This tool allows one custodial employee the ability to complete floor finishing operations that traditionally took two employees to accomplish. No need for one worker to pour finish and another to apply with the Unger Excella.

I see multiple applications in our schools with the Unger Excella floor tool ranging from daily mopping of classrooms, hallways, stairwells and restrooms to project work like quickly adding a few more coats of floor finish to a high-traffic hallway.

I highly recommend the Unger Excella for any custodial operation that is looking for a high quality floor tool that is fun to use, ergonomic and will increase your custodial team's productivity."
